Paul made his TV debut as a magician on BBC's Tricky Business. However, within 6 months he appeared as a ventriloquist on Hanger 17 and shortly after that landed a two-year contract presenting the GMTV kids' programme Rise and Shine with his irresistible characters Sam, Albert and the Baby. Paul has worked on many TV commercials including Kellogg's, Persil and Honda and was involved as a puppeteer in the film Muppet Treasure Island for the Jim Henson Company and was also the ventriloquial adviser to Anthony Sher in the BBC Film Genghis Cohn. Paul can be seen regularly at Jongleurs Comedy Clubs and with his unique style of comedy and its mass appeal Paul has become much sought after in the corporate and after dinner market all over the world.

"Paul Zerdin is no dummy. A ventriloquist for the South Park generation." The Stage

"Just to underline that the big names were not going to have it all their own way, the loudest applause went to Paul Zerdin who is reviving the unfashionable art of ventriloquism."

The Times

"If you think the words 'brilliant' and 'ventriloquist' have no place in the same sentence, go and see Paul Zerdin for some brutal re-education." The Evening Standard
